Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons

OPCW

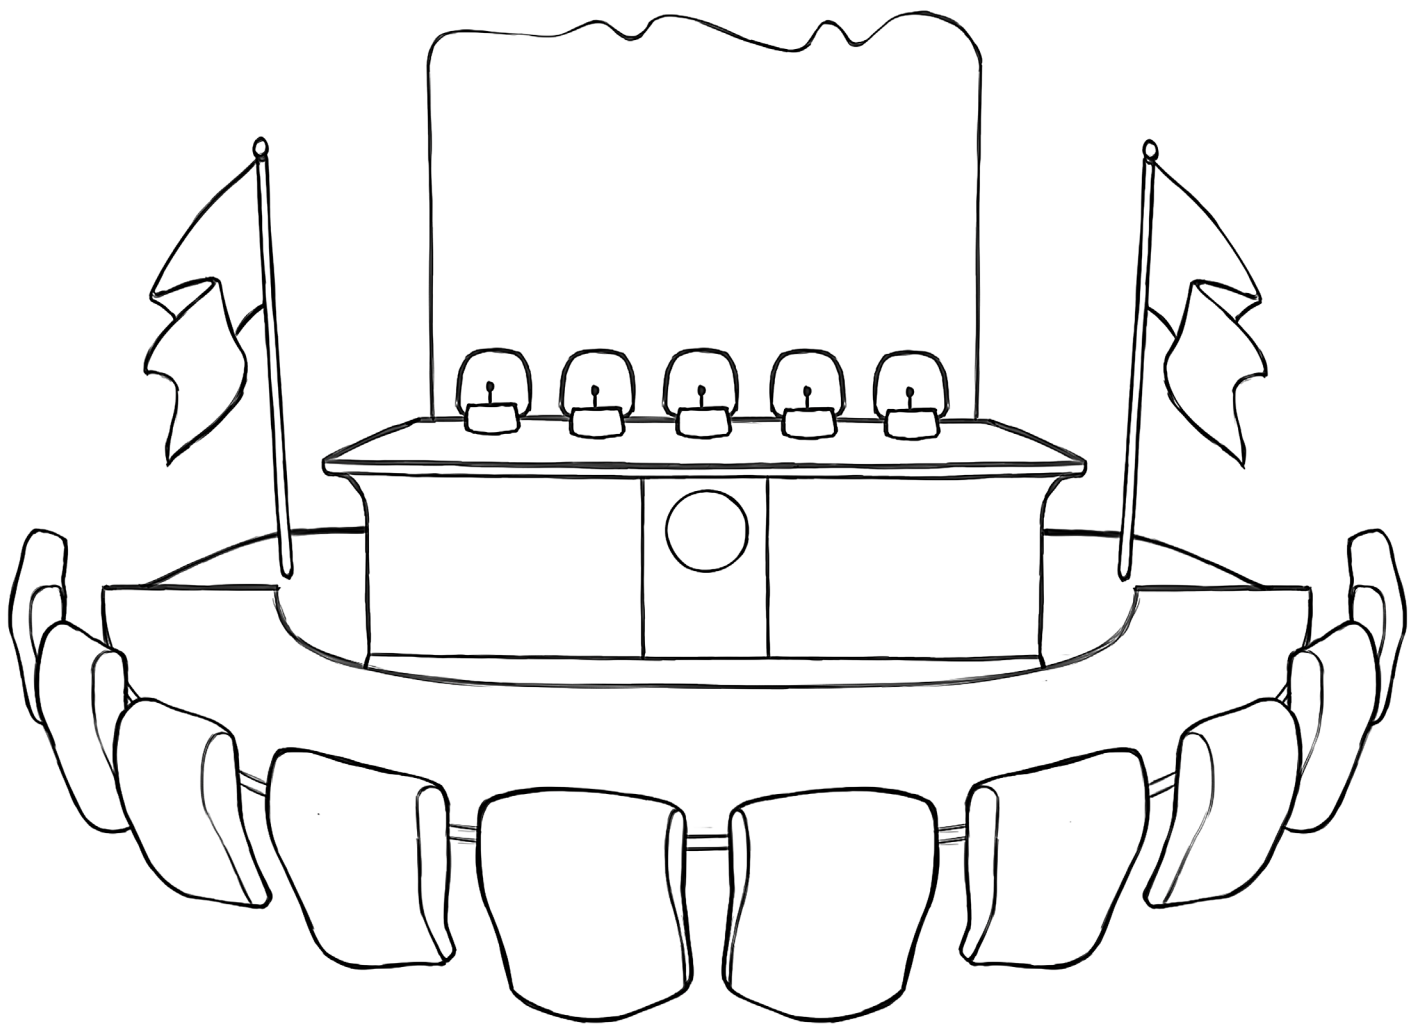

The Hague is the international city of peace and justice, and home to the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons. The OPCW works with 193 countries for a world free of chemical weapons.

OPCW

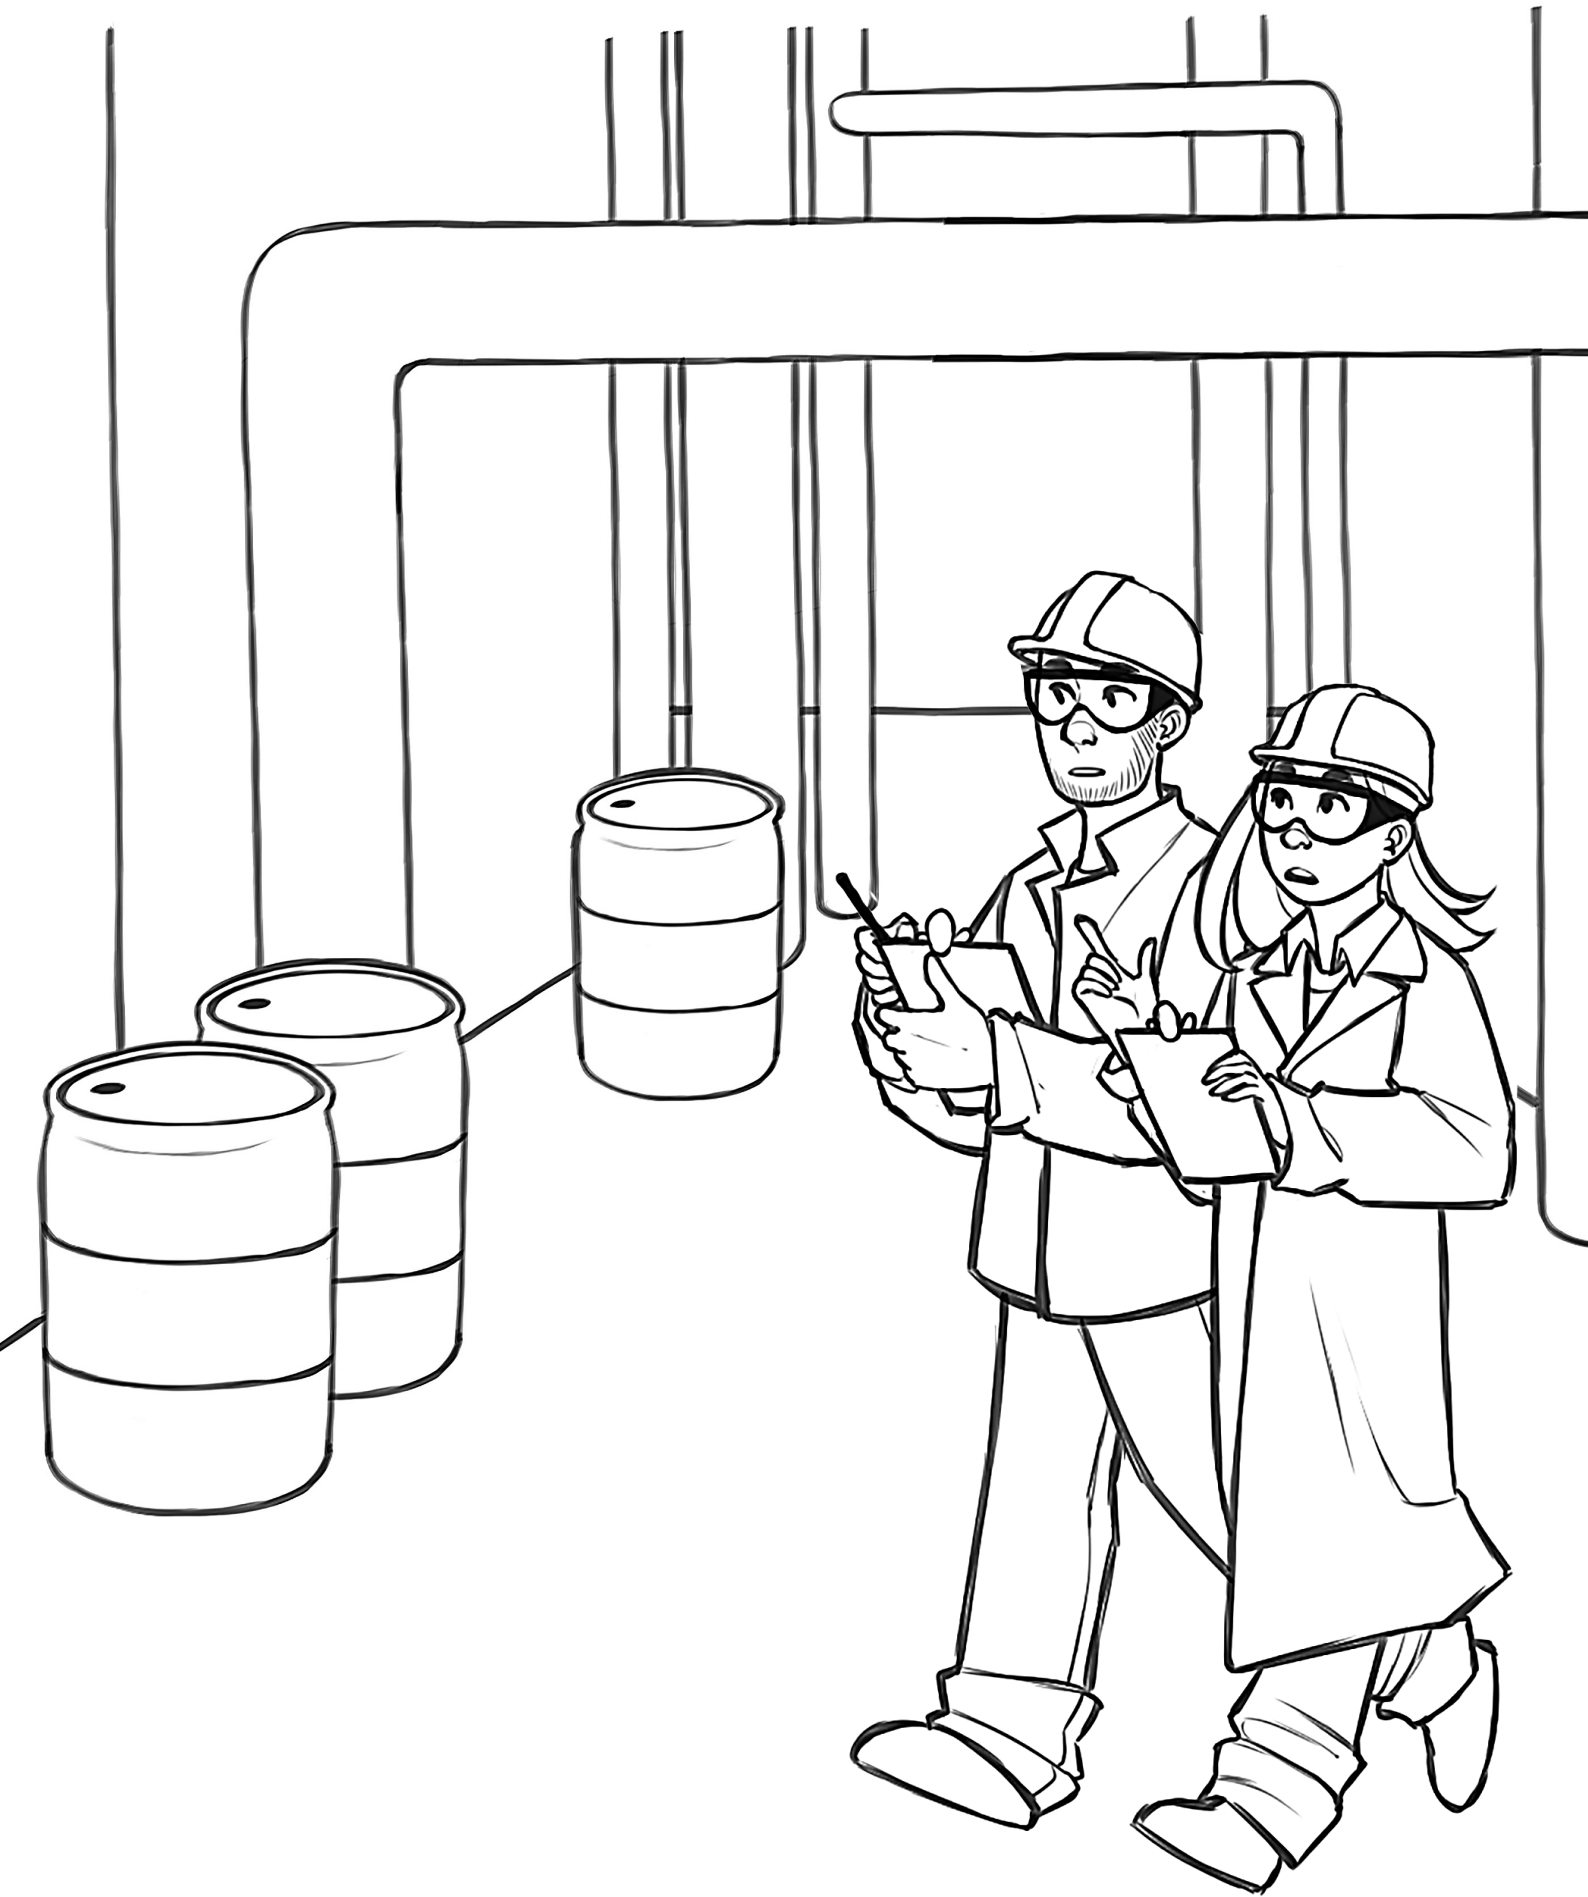

OPCW inspectors wear protective gear like suits, gas masks and gloves to keep them safe from exposure to toxic chemicals.

OPCW

At the OPCW, diplomats from many different countries talk with one another and make decisions to protect the world from chemical weapons.

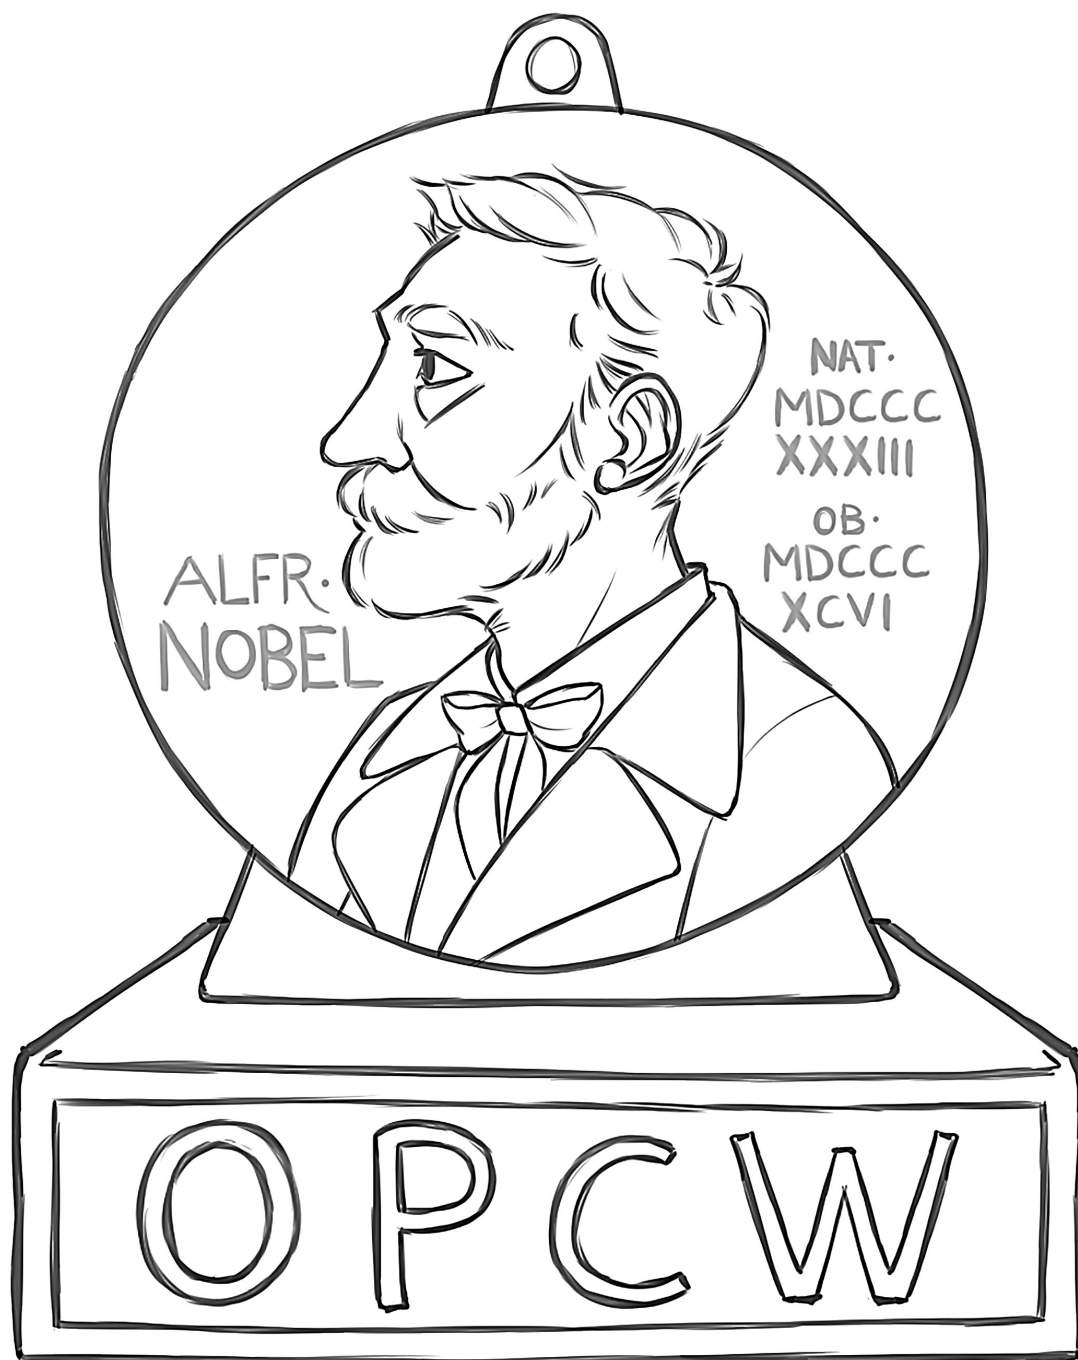

OPCW

OPCW inspectors go to chemical factories to make sure rules are being followed.

OPCW

OPCW inspectors are experts who practice how to help countries with chemical emergencies.

OPCW

The Nobel Prize for Peace was awarded to the OPCW in 2013
for its extensive efforts to eliminate chemical weapons.

Chemistry should only be used for the peace,
progress and prosperity of humankind.
